To celebrate National Jazz Appreciation Month, the Kimmel Center and Jazz Bridge, an organization dedicated to helping local jazz musicians in crisis, are mounting Philadelphia's first ever all-jazz photography exhibition. Philly Jazz: A View through the Lens will be shown throughout the month of April in a beautiful glass room on the main plaza of the Kimmel Center, and features the work of photographers Anthony Dean, L. David Hinton, Ben Johnson, and Howard Pitkow, and videographer Jason Fifield—who have been shooting the local jazz scene for years. The exhibition includes dynamic images of Philadelphia jazz artists caught in the act of improvisation, grief, mentorship, and mutual admiration. The images and film are extraordinary, providing a unique opportunity for fans and the general audience to understand the local jazz community in all of its complexity and joy.

This event is part of Jazz Philadelphia's Jazz Appreciation Month.

All artists and programs subject to change.
